EDUCATION WEEK & OPEN DAY

“Education Week will be celebrated in all Victorian communities between 20 and 24 May. Education Week promotes the achievements and dedication of students, staff and the school community”. At Warranwood Education Week we usually celebrate with an Open Day and sometimes night, aiming for current parents and future parents to view the great things that we do! This year we are having an early Open Day on Tuesday 7 May, as well as a Prep Information Night for prospective 2014 enrolments. It is early because we have a range of things happening in the school in the ensuing weeks – reporting week, Middle School swimming, conferences and more!

SCHOOL COUNCIL

At School Council on Tuesday night we had our usual committee reports with lots of good news in terms of Parents Association, Spring Fair, Canteen etc. Other items included:

♦ A very exciting program we are about to embark on following School Council approval is the replacement of light globes around the school with energy efficient LED globes, including 430 fluorescent tubes! This is not only environmentally responsible but will save a lot of money on power bills. This will be done in conjunction with Enerlite Australia.

♦ Uniform review. This year we are going to review the school uniform in terms of material, design, colour etc. Community consultation will begin shortly!

STUDENT WELFARE OFFICER

Again, thank you to those parents who completed the survey in regards to Mia’s program. These comments and responses supported my report to the Federal funding agency. A typical comment from a parent was “I believe Mia an asset to the school as a whole. Not only does her support and advice assist individual children and their families, but her general programs also help with overall student well-being and welfare. Her programs help students, teachers and parents alike. Her encouragement and enthusiasm has helped the entire school community.”

A QUESTION OF HEALTH

This week Gay writes about the onset of the 2013 flu season! Check the front page of our website!

LAST WEEK...

Term 1 finishes next Thursday at 2:30pm. We will have a brief assembly at around 2:15pm to draw our annual Easter Raffle. Our usual Monday assembly will go ahead as normal!

Assistant Principal Report

Professional Learning

This week we had our second visit from Michael Ymer working in classrooms on maths. He has affirmed much of the good work being done in the school and provided some new and exciting ideas as well as reminding us of lots of things we already know. He will return in May to work with each team.

I also attended a small workshop on the use of Facebook as an effective communication tool for schools. It was very interesting to hear some statistics of the reach of Facebook (12 million subscribers in Australia) and how powerful its reach is. It was also affirming to look at the importance of using this communication with families.
Bike and Scooter Riding
Just a reminder please that students need to wheel their bikes/scooters through the playground before and after school. We have many visitors in the school at this time and we don’t want anyone bowled over!

Planning Week
Our teams have been working away this week to complete some exciting units for next term. Watch out for the new titles in next week’s newsletter and unit newsletters from each team.

District Trials
Congratulations to everyone who has, or is about to try out at a district level for a team. This is a great experience for a young person to have. It is a chance to showcase their skills, meet some new people and see what’s happening elsewhere. It can be disappointing to not go through to the next round, however this is also part of life and may spur individuals on for the future. The competition even at district level is of a very high standard, let alone the regional level. Well done to all students.

Sue

Sports News
This week is our second last week of Summer sport. We are playing Ringwood North PS. Parents are welcome to attend and support our teams, sometimes there will be a scoring role or other ways to help. Next week our last game will be on Thursday morning against Kalinda PS.

Congratulations to the following individuals for being selected as Warranwood’s representatives at the District football, netball, soccer and basketball trials. Well done Mel H, Tom D, Ashleigh W, Nick H, Grace N, Ben H, Megan O, Joel H, Paisley P, Elliott P, Hannah T, Jackson H, Lauren O, Tom M, Breda O, Declan M, Danny O, Hannah C, Jackson E and Will P. At the time of writing Lauren, Ashleigh and Will had progressed further than the District level.

Remember to keep your fingers crossed for the girls swimming in the State Titles next Wednesday. Go Kelly, Brooke, Stephanie, Carly and Ashleigh!!

PARENTS ASSOCIATION REPORT

Our normal Monday assembly was interrupted by 8 mums and school children alike on roller skates dancing to “Gangnam Style”. It was 2 minutes of fun that had the whole school up on their feet dancing with excitement. This is the impression the Parents Association wanted to leave with every student for our Roller Skating Party, Family Disco this Friday night. So parents if your children have asked “Mum can we still go roller skating?” Well YES they can, all you have to do is contact Trish in the office or just turn up on the night, 6.30 at 34 Industrial Park Drive, Lilydale. Hope to see you all there.

Don’t forget your Hot Cross Bun order form, which needs to be in by this Friday at 10am the latest!

And we promise the last reminder for this week is to send back your Easter Egg Raffle coupon with $10.

Thanks,

The Parents Association Co-Presidents,
Georgie & Shona

Rosemary
NO ORDINARY GIRL

The last light switch flicked. A heavy gust of wind rushed through the jammed window leaving me with chills. The door was unable to close, making me feel unsafe, even a hero can’t fight the enemy of fear. Every noise no matter how loud or quiet makes me pause. My blue eyes damp with tears forming. The feeling that someone is watching me keeps me awake in fear.

The morning begins with the relaxing yet unbelievably annoying sound of rushing cars and aggravated drivers honking their horns to relieve the stress of the back to work blues. Today seems as if it will be like any other. Meaning slip on the trackies and a singlet and watch TV with a container of ice-cream in my hands. But, well let’s just say life is never how it seems! I run through the crowds frantically, through and around people that have no idea I’m here. Nothing leads me off track when I’m on a mission. Especially one like this, one that no one knows about and hopefully it stays that way! You see I may sound like an average person but once you get to know me you will realize I’m not. Let me start at the beginning.

Since an incredibly young age I had never been thought of as normal. No friends, no one to talk to, and it only seemed to get worse. No matter where I went, what hospital, brain surgeon, psychologist. No one could find anything wrong. But just because they didn’t know what was affecting me doesn’t mean I didn’t. I knew nothing was wrong with me but the doctor didn’t, and I knew how I was complicatedly different but my parents didn’t. So it was and is always a little confusing for everyone. Everyone but me, Girl Fierce. Don’t think that my parents are odd because they named me Ella Jane Elizabeth, although it is odd to have two names in the average world doesn’t mean it is in the superhero world. Just in case you didn’t get the memo, I’m a superhero. A crime fighting, lifesaving, superhero.

I have been living two lives since the age of 2, which starts a whole new story… It was my first checkup at the dentist after a chipped tooth, and you know how they give you that bad tasting cordial drink once they’ve finished your checkup? Well the dentist managed to give me a power drink instead, and at the age of 2 that has, shall we say, a different effect. After I left the dentist that day my head was throbbing so hard that it felt as if I had 50 tonnes of bricks on my head. I somehow made it to my room without falling over, then I plonked myself down on my bed trying to find a comfortable position. Forcing away the tears with all my strength, until I felt something fluffy rubbing against my arms. I turned around with fright at the sight of the black fluffy things emerging. It was a wing and no matter how hard I yanked, it didn’t seem to move from my back, not until I thought so hard that it popped into my body.

Now it will make more sense if I tell you that I was running through the crowds frantically. Through and around people that have no idea I’m here. Because, well my powers include invisibility. So no one could see me. And I am on a mission. This mission isn’t to save or help someone else it’s to do so for me.

This mission started just yesterday, or, to be particular it was last night. In the darkness I saw a head. At the time I was unsure as to whether this was an image I had painted in my head or a real live figure. My queries were solved when I saw a head and then a body, it was a human! Spying on me? But why? These questions wander around my head desperate to find the answer, and just as I was about to burst out in tears a possible solution came to me. The person thought I was a superhero and was trying to prove themselves.

The sun lowered behind the dark clouds as I commenced my plan. I definitely wasn’t going into this spontaneously. Ever since I found out the reason as to why this person could have been spying on me, I have been planning a way of catching them and stopping them from harming my identity.

In my position (just outside the door) ready to save all superheroes I took a deep breath then stared at my hands. I could feel them but just not see them. It worked, I was invisible! In the silence of the night I heard a creaking hotel door closing. I then noticed someone walking by the noise of the loose timber floorboards. I peer around, up and it wasn’t until I peered down that I saw a child, her thick brown knotted hair covering her shy blue eyes.

I urge myself to keep quiet. Finally figuring that I won’t feel bad about not helping this girl if I think of something. My heart rate increased from fear that my identity would be revealed. I begin thinking of this whole mission, which leads me to a question, or more. Am I getting paranoid over something that I shouldn’t be? Is this person I have thought of as mean really going to harm me? And is there even a person? My stomach knotted with guilt. Why would I be so obsessive to think that just because someone walks past my room at night they are up to something.

It’s the dawn of a new day, the sun is rising after a sleepless night and yet I am still thinking of how I could have offended someone like I did. Feeling miserable and cruel I walk into the hotel’s hallway. On my way down the stairs I get frustrated by the constant creaking with each step. I take to skipping as many steps as possible so I don’t have to listen to the aggravating noise. In my mind every noise but the creak is blocked out after gritting my teeth for 3 quarters of walking down the stairs, I can’t take it anymore!

I put all my anger towards the stairs until my powers give me an obvious solution. A tingling sensation rushes up my spine, making my brain twiddle. I jump forwards from a whole lot of force and when I turn my head two fluffy black wings appear on my back. I hover over the stairs no longer having to listen to their creak. No one would believe me from just seeing my clothes if I told them I am a superhero, because my powers haven’t completely formed meaning that I haven’t got a suit yet. As I made my way out of the hotel, cautious no one sees me, I hear a click coming from a nearby bin. And another, but this time I also see a flash. I obviously haven’t been cautious enough! A man leaps out of the bin. He has the same face as the one from a couple of nights ago that I abused. Someone has been spying on me! My jaw drops in shock, a tear runs down my face, staring at the man until his movement breaks my glare. Waking me up to reality. I soar after him. Cursing the doctor for not giving me the ability of speed, I put that behind me and begin heavily flapping my wings which makes me move faster.

The man turns down an alley way. I follow him with determination, ensuring that I use all my abilities. My view of him becoming distinct. Luckily it is clear enough to see him as he turns around with a camera in his hands. I flap my wings even harder and once I am close enough I notice his finger on the trigger. My only response is to become invisible! Still hidden by my powers I gradually get closer to the man. Once I am a couple of meters away from him I raise my hand up away from him and blow my final puff of air lifting all the dry dirt off the ground. He falls to the ground and I leap off the warm air below me reaching for the camera. But all my strength has been drained and exhaustion brings me towards the ground, the rush causing my powers that I am currently using to fade. The last chance to complete my mission is about to run away from me, I won’t let this happen! I wriggle up to the camera and past the injured man. With his final boost of strength he reaches for my leg, I quickly form a round shape over my body with my hands and as the man reaches for me he is blocked by my force field. I grab the camera and delete the photos.

Taking a deep breath out I remove my powers and lift myself up off the ground with my weak shaky arms. I make my way over to the man and help him up, once he has woken I drape his arms over my shoulder and relocate him to a safe place.

The last light switch flicked and I drifted off with the thought that I, Girl Fierce, had just saved the lives and hearts of many.
