Thanks to Creative Learning Partnerships we have been fortunate to work with the Melbourne-based artist Rob Scholten.

Rob has collaborated with students, staff and the community to create a stunning series of installations that together create a wonderful display of our history, shared stories and personal ideas.

Our students have made connections with their school and wider community to generate ideas about:
*What was life like? What is life like?
What might it be like in the future?*

They have created individual and collaborative artworks as a result of their learning. We would be honoured if you could join us in celebrating the experience.
